- Leadership Update (incoming officers names and roles): Moderator: Abi Sweeney, Vice-Moderator: TBD

- Membership (current and incoming members): Attached

- Activities during the past year: The division has been tasked with researching and assembling a report on the state of our Division’s specific career field. This report has passed the literature review phase.

- Ongoing projects: The report will be moving into membership survey and case studies, before being compiled into a final list of outcomes and advisory points for the coming years.

- Preliminary goals for next year: Completion and publication of the State of Art and Design School Librarianship report. Fostering more participation by division members through opportunities to interact with the report or to gather digitally to present library projects, in lieu of the annual meeting at the national conference.

- Articulate how your activities, projects and goals relate to the ARLIS/NA [Strategic Directions]:
  - Leadership and Advocacy / Organizational Advancement: The goal of completing the State of Art and Design School Librarianship report is to create a guiding document, advocating for the support and visibility of librarians in this particular area of the professions covered by ARLIS/NA
  - Art Information Professionals: By offering a digital platform to hold conversations concerning the field of Art and Design School Librarianship, we can fill the void left by the cancellation of the 2020 St. Louis conference, continue to gain group informed perspective to apply to the report, and offer an extended professional opportunity for our division members

- Other (please share anything else you want the membership to know about your group or your role): Garnering participation in projects from the membership of this division has been quite difficult.
