• Leadership Update (incoming officers names and roles):
  SIG moderator: Jill Chisnell
  I anticipate that 2020-2021 will be my last year as the SCIP SIG coordinator.

• Membership (current and incoming members):
The list sent by Nancy Short on 2/20/20 included 64 members (based on ARLIS/NA membership renewals. I do not know how many people are signed up for the SCIP SIG listserv. The ongoing list I had maintained since 2018 included 126 members.

• Activities during the past year:
While not sponsored by the SCIP SIG, I was planning to present a relevant interactive workshop with two other SCIP members. We planned to take the opportunity to promote the SIG. With another member, I was working with conference organizers to plan and manage the St. Louis conference makerspace.

• Ongoing projects:
None at this time.

• Preliminary goals for next year:

  Agenda for April 27, 2020 Annual Meeting include:
  • Address future leadership vacancy
  • ARLIS/NA 2021 in Montreal
    o Makerspace
    o Events or panels
• Year-round activity and engagement
  o In these current times, I believe there is opportunity to harness social media to promote and highlight the creative output and solutions that have become more important as we navigate these uncertain times.

• Articulate how your activities, projects and goals relate to the ARLIS/NA Strategic Directions:
  I believe the SCIP SIG has the potential to address several (if not all) ARLIS/NA Strategic Directions. The core mission of the SIG is to promote creative practice—both personal and professional—as a means of self-expression, but also for teaching, learning, and leading.

• Other (please share anything else you want the membership to know about your group or your role):

  I believe the SCIP SIG is truly important. However, I also think it might be best served with two leaders (either working together or incoming/outgoing). I have not been able to champion the SIG as much as I would like.
